

Clinical Scribe Internship

Want a volunteer experience unlike any other?

Come volunteer as a scribe with the San Francisco Department of Public Health!

SFDPH is currently accepting applications from pre-health professional students for a limited number of clinical scribe unpaid internships at the Curry Senior Center.

In the SFDPH Scribe program, you'll get:

- An extensive working knowledge of common healthcare problems, primary care practice, and medical terminology
- The chance to see medicine practiced up close and personal in a real-world environment
- A close relationship with medical professionals unlike that found in any other volunteer capacity
- Flexible hours – we understand that your education is your priority
- The opportunity to take on a special project in your area of interest, such as helping with data-gathering, patient education, treatment research, or even the development of clinic-wide healthcare policy

Working as a clinical scribe serves as an accelerated immersion in the world of provider/patient medicine. Our primary care clinics provide affordable, comprehensive, and high quality care to people of all ages and from all walks of life. We are deeply committed to the growth and success of our scribes in the clinic and beyond, and if you are selected to join us, we can guarantee a volunteer experience that is impossible to match anywhere else.

Applications are open to all students currently enrolled or planning to enroll in pre-health professional education. Bilingual language abilities are a plus. While hours are flexible, including night and Saturday clinics, we do require a minimum commitment of 8 hours per week for one year, or 100 hours over 4-6 months.

If interested, please send your cover letter, CV, and availability to faiza.saeed@sfdph.org or amelia.gurley@sfdph.org.
